IRISH SONG.

[Suggested by four lines in Banting's collection-to the air of "The Rejected Lover."]

On Innisfallen's fairy isle. Amid the blooming bushes, We leant upon the lover's stile, And listened to the thrushes; When I first sighed to see her smile, And smiled to see her blushes.

Her hair was bright as beaten gold, And soft as spiders spinning. Her cheek out bloomed the apple old That set our parents sinning : And in her eyes you might behold My joys and griefs beginning.

In Innisfallen's fairy grove I hushed my happy wooing. To listen to the brooding dove Amid the branches cooing; But oh! how short these hours of love, How long their bitter rueing!

Poor cushat! thy complaining breast With woe like mine is heaving, With thee I mourn a fruitless quest; For ah ! with art deceiving The cukoo-bird has robbed my nest, And left me wildly grieving. -The Spectator.
